

From the “Surge” to the Streets: Iraq Veteran Josh Stieber Treks Across the Country to Tell His Story

Come meet him when he comes to Cambridge!

Tuesday, June 30, 2009

Refreshments at 6:00 | Talk at 6:30

“We can sit around and wait until the worst case scenario breaks out, or we can be proactive and make our very existences conscious of the world’s suffering, dedicated to uniting for a loving world.”

-Josh Stieber,
“Contagious Love Experiment”
(<http://contagiousloveexperiment.wordpress.com>)

Combat veteran and Conscientious Objector Josh Stieber has just returned from Iraq where he was part of the “Surge.” He is now traveling across the country by foot, bike, and bus, speaking with hundreds of communities along the way. Please join us to hear his timely and powerful stories about his experience of war and his journey of peace.

AFSC’s New England Office
2161 Mass Ave., Cambridge, MA
(Near Davis Square and Porter Square  stations)

Free and open to the public —
*all are welcome to come hear his remarkable story!

*“If you’re feeling burnt out and war weary, come listen to these stories.
It energized me!”* – Carol, a participant at a recent discussion with Josh

Contact Massachusetts Peace Action for more information and to RSVP:
members@masspeaceaction.org or 617.354.2169

Co-Sponsored by: AFSC, Mass Peace Action, Mass Military Families Speak Out, the Greater Boston United for Justice with Peace coalition, and Y-WILPF.